Yet I fear greatly what the next few weeks may have in store for us. We are, sir, I think, so near the verge of a revolution that only Providence and the firmness of the better classes can be relied on to rescue us from dreadful scenes.

Less than a month ago the defeat of Bryan and his policy of spoliation, at archy and national dishonor seemed certain, so certain that I, for one, had not the least doubt of it. Now, how-ever, the prospect has altered. The news from the West is of a character to justify the apprehension that the pro-letariat is wrestling itself away from all control. I have reason to know that even the superb confidence of Mr. Mark Hanna has been shaken. The social deeps are breaking up, and disorder, menacing and universal, impends. The outlook is that we are about to witness the last Presidential election in the United States, the final test and failure of manhood suffrage, as it is called.

For, let it be understood, the intelligent minority of this pation will no more consent to submit to the mindless tyranny of the unintelligent majority than the whites of the South will bow to the will of the ignorant and outnumbering blacks. Civilization, thank God, has for its defence resources beyond the
